An interdisciplinary panel discussion on the topic:
"Connecting Healthcare and the Community to Prevent Falls"

Falls amongst older adults are a serious public health crisis, affecting one in four older adults each year. Fall prevention is a team effort that relies on an interdisciplinary team in both health care systems and the community. This session will feature panelists from healthcare, EMS, public health and the Milwaukee County DHHS Division on Aging. We hope you can join us to learn more about resources available to you and your patients as well as successful strategies to make connections for a comprehensive public health approach to prevent falls.
